The major vulnerability of many large companies lies with their security, as they have many employees who come and go and often several offices all around the world which means that staff have Internet access on different platforms and therefore carry out their work using different programs. Most of the large companies that have been targeted by malware that encrypt their files are in IT services, software or business consulting. In almost all cases, the ransomware is sent to the business through some outside party, or someone with a remote Internet connection. Recent trends Wannacry - A variant of the Petya ransomware family, Wannacry appeared 570a42141b
